Versatile use in hospitals

Keeps the tiniest of us warm.

Patient blankets can save lives!

Body temperature is sinking. Cardiovascular failure and hyperthermia are imminent. Body functions are just ticking over and the risk of infection is increasing.

If a body is no longer able to regulate its body temperature itself, immediate action is needed. One of the first main measures for patients with sinking body temperature is to keep them warm.

During ambulance transport, treatment or operations – single-use blankets have proved their worth in many areas and are an integral part of the standard equipment of hospitals, emergency vehicles and care facilities. They are hygienic, clean and, on top of that, easy to dispose of.

Their high-quality soft cotton fleece makes our single-use patient blankets exceptionally skin-friendly, breathable and moisture-resistant. These qualities all go to make our single-use patient blankets high-quality medical products, which provide comfort to patients.

Fields of use for single-use patient blankets:

- Protection of body or parts of the body during an operation, thus retaining body heat
- Provision of warmth during dialysis or prolonged infusions
- Keeping babies warm after birth
- Use as thermal protection on examination tables
- Warming of legs of patients in wheelchairs
